

RIDDIFORD PAVILION
Lower Hutt

A new community building for Lower Hutt's busy Riddiford Garden. The pavilion features two full-accessible public toilets and a kiosk. It also cleverly disguises an old electricity substation.

Robust and highly-functional, the pavilion meets the challenge of the security issues of such a public site. It has also been designed to fit in with Hutt City Council's recently redeveloped (by Architecture+) administration building and sits comfortably facing a busy main road. Skilful lighting design makes it attractive day and night.

Photos: Andy Spain